HOW GREEN IS YOUR FURNACE

EVOLUTION OF THE FURNACE... PAST TO PRESENT

Heating systems are responsible for more than a billion tons of carbon dioxide (CO2) released annually into the atmosphere.

- A faulty furnace not only burns money, it pollutes the atmosphere.
- Bigger is not better! Too big of furnace wastes fuel because it keeps turning on and off and spends most of its time warming up and cooling down.
- More than 3% of the hot air a furnace generates will never reach any room in your house. Leaking ducts cost consumers in the U.S. $5 billion in energy loss. Sealing and insulating your ducts can improve the efficiency of your heating by 20%.
- A dirty filter will slow down the airflow, make your furnace work harder and waste energy. Changing the air filter in your heating system regularly can knock 2% off of your CO2 output each year.

Weakland's can install a new Rheem 80% or 90% efficient furnace in your home with a programmable thermostat. It will save 1.5 tons of CO2 emissions and make your house healthier, cheaper to operate and cut your pollution output in half.

Weakland's will service your furnace, change your filter, make sure your furnace is sized properly and they can seal your ducts so you save energy and prevent global warming while enhancing the comfort of your home.
